AI and the Future of Writing Instruction

By Rhea Kelly | 03/29/23

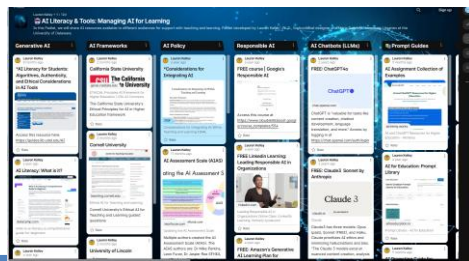

Those who can best write with AI will be those who can best write without it, because they'll need to be able to write good prompts, evaluate the AI output, and edit the resulting text into a usable final product.

A Dozen Ways to Get a Research Sample

15

#1. Use existing data that a center or institute has collected but not analyzed.

16

#2. Use existing government data.

17

#3. Use computer log and system generated data (e.g., keystroke data).

18

#4. Paste study info to social media.

19

#5. Post study info to a MOOC.

20

#6. Go out and collect it (e.g., observational data, survey, interview, etc.)

21

#7. Contact fellow researchers about how they got their sample.

22

#8. Form a group in Facebook or LinkedIn related to your research.

23

#9. Research team collects names and emails from an existing website.

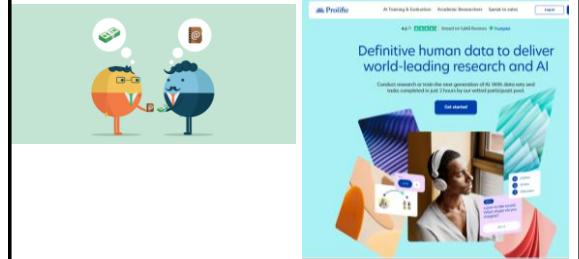

24

#10. Scrape online data and conduct data mining or learning analytics on it.

25

#11. Buy names and emails from a vendor (e.g., Prolific; Note of caution: this can be expensive).

26

#12. Have a sponsor for the research (e.g., Wikimedia Foundation, MIT OCW).

October 3, 2019 Crucial Co-Writing Considerations

Jordan McNeill, Inside Higher Ed
<https://www.insidehighered.com/blog/jordan-mcneill/crucial-co-writing-considerations>

1. Clarify authorship order ahead of time.
2. Have an honest conversation about the strengths of each team member--draft, revise, proofread, and format your manuscript.
3. Be clear on division of labor.
4. Nonwriting tasks are important too--taking notes, submission guidelines, and keep track of deadlines.
5. Set up digital collaboration norms and platforms--archiving, tracking, commenting, etc.
6. Respond to feedback professionally.
7. Build in time for feedback and revision.
8. Singular voice throughout paper--assign one member of team to read for writing style and flow.

49

Meina Zhu Research Collaboration-Why?

1. Improve quality of research.
2. Extend research relationships and networks.
3. Foster interdisciplinary and transdisciplinary research.
4. Share expertise and knowledge transfer.
5. Enhance scientific and publishing productivity.
6. Accelerate dissemination of findings for community benefit.

50

Meina Zhu... Research Collaboration-How?

1. Identify the skills that you can offer
2. Identify how the collaboration will meet your needs
3. Find collaborators
4. Introduce yourself
5. Set expectations at the beginning of the collaboration
6. Leverage tools for collaborations
7. Keep communicating
8. Do not be discouraged

'Are You Writing?' (Oct, 4, 2018)
 Rebecca Shuman, The Chronicle of Higher Education
<https://www.chronicle.com/article/A-New-Series-on-Scholarly-Productivity/244689>

1. Read as peer reviewer; mark up everything.
2. Catalog problems on a 1 to 3 difficulty scale (Level 1 takes less than 30 minutes, Level 2 takes 2 hours or less; Level 3 takes more time).
3. Fix the easy ones and gain momentum for the harder ones!
4. Take breaks as needed.

Tackling Revisions

Alexandra Gold, Inside Higher Ed
<https://www.insidehighered.com/blogs/gradhacker/tackling-revisions>

Revise and Resubmit Steps:

- There is a huge difference between superficial editing or proofreading and in-depth revising.
- Cut down the introduction; these tend to be long and rambling and incoherent anyway. Reworking the intro often is easier once you know where your argument is going.

57

March 24, 2019
Tackling Revisions

Alexandra Gold, Inside Higher Ed
<https://www.insidehighered.com/blogs/gradhacker/tackling-revisions>

Game Plan:

- Start with a list/flow chart and timetable for revisions.
- Make a revision plan. And stick to that plan.
- Do small scale revisions before the large ones.
- Make a revision plan and stick to it.

58

Tackling Revisions
 Alexandra Gold, Inside Higher Ed
<https://www.insidehighered.com/blogs/gradhacker/tackling-revisions>

Keep the Scraps:

- One chapter may be problematic.
- Sometimes you have to move on to another section or chapter.
- There is no such thing as wasted writing (deleted text may clarify thinking or contain ideas for a different article or go in another section).

From Dreaded to Amazing

Cathy Davidson describes how to transform your "revise and resubmit" comments from one to the other.

By Cathy N. Davidson / February 12, 2019

Perhaps the biggest turning point in my career as a researcher and writer came the day that it dawned on me that receiving a "revise and resubmit" reader's report – or any kind of professional feedback – was a gift, not a curse and a condemnation. The first few times it felt like, no matter what I did, some "authority figure" was going to tell me how wrong or bad or stupid I was. Sound familiar?

Cathy N. Davidson, Inside Higher Ed

<https://www.insidehighered.com/advice/2019/02/12/how-use-reviewers-revise-and-resubmit-comments-most-effectively-opinion>

Then I showed one of my early R and R's to a senior colleague. (This in itself was a big step.) "Can you believe this sexist response?" I began to fume. Fortunately, my wonderful senior colleague, Linda Wagner-Martin -- then at Michigan State University, and the single most prolific scholar I've known in my entire career -- stayed calm, heard me out and asked to read the reader's report. And then she said something like, "Oh, how lucky! Someone was willing to take time out of their own obligations to make sure your work would be publishable -- and is pushing you to be as good as you can be."

<https://www.insidehighered.com/advice/2019/02/12/how-use-reviewers-revise-and-resubmit-comments-most-effectively-opinion>

Revise and Resubmit Steps:

- Print out reader/reviewer reports.
- Make 4 categories.
- Make each category its own sheet of paper.
- Keep clean copy of the manuscript.
- Make online copy; use different fonts and colors or type size or margins.

<https://www.insidehighered.com/advice/2019/02/12/how-use-reviewers-revise-and-resubmit-comments-most-effectively-opinion>

Revise and Resubmit Steps:

- Make revisions by hand and online.
- Keep a physical copy of the revisions.
- No. 1 Praise. I list any complimentary comments according to Reader A, Reader B or both. I put in page numbers if they are available.
- Don't touch anything the readers love (i.e., don't revise the good stuff).

Revise and Resubmit Steps:

- No. 2. Fix typos, factual errors, run-on sentences, clarity points, etc. List them according to Reader A, Reader B, etc.
- Do small, easy fixable things and check off on sheet No. 2. This is a great psychological warmup.

How to Find a Writing Routine that Works
Manya Whitaker, The Chronicle of Higher Education

<https://www.chronicle.com/article/how-to-find-a-writing-routine-that-works>

1. Always work on at least 2 projects.
2. Review potential publishers and options.
3. Set a reasonable writing timeline.
4. Make a writing schedule and plan.
5. Have a project-based writing schedule.
6. Expand notion of when "writing."
7. Set time writing goals, not word goals.
8. Write what motivates you that day.
9. Establish flexible schedules.
10. Read more and edit as you go.

The Habits of Highly Productive Writers
Rachel Tour, The Chronicle of Higher Education

https://www.chronicle.com/article/the-habits-of-highly-productive-writers/70d2+qen_login_refurbished+qen_sign_in

You have time only if you make it a priority. Productive writers don't allow themselves the indulgence of easy excuses. When they start to have feelings of self-doubt—I can't do this, it's too hard, I'll never write another good sentence—they tell themselves to stop feeling sorry for themselves and just do the work.

They know there are no shortcuts, magic bullets, special exercises, or incantations.

Step Away From the Delete Button
Rebecca Schuman, The Chronicle of Higher Education

<https://www.chronicle.com/article/Step-Away-From-the-Delete/2469137cid=cp242>

1. Ideas will be no good on first pass.
2. There are no shortcuts...even a small subsection of a manuscript takes time.
3. You will need multiple versions of almost all your sentences to lead to polished prose.
4. It takes intellectual and artistic stamina to come up with ideas are good enough for academic journals.
5. Don't let messy, gibberish words taunt and haunt you.

Step Away From the Delete Button
Rebecca Schuman, The Chronicle of Higher Education

<https://www.chronicle.com/article/Step-Away-From-the-Delete/2469137cid=cp242>

6. Write for 25 minutes 1-3 times a day for a week with deleting a single word.
7. Bracket some messages to yourself of sections that will need attention later (to calm your inner delete button).
8. Uncertain and unlike text make a difference color.
9. After you break the habit of deleting, you can delete judiciously.
10. Trust your research and your ideas. Avoid setting standards at ridiculously high levels.

Rewarding Your Writing
Leslie Leonard, Inside Higher Ed

<https://www.insidehighered.com/blogs/gradhacker/rewarding-your-writing>

1. Track your writing. Have realistic expectations of output.
2. Find ways to mark days you have met your writing goals (e.g., stickers).
3. Writing should be enjoyable, a reward in and of itself.
4. Rewards are many: sleeping in, a fancy cup of coffee, new clothes, movie tickets, spa day, etc.
5. Have drawings for random rewards for meeting goals.

72

December 10, 2019 Rewarding Your Writing

Leslie Leonard, Inside Higher Ed
<https://www.insidehighered.com/blogs/gradhacker/rewarding-your-writing>

6. Let your rough drafts be rough.
7. Just write. List your goals. Get something down.
8. Use goofy fonts, nonsense words, rhymes, etc. (count these towards your writing goals and reward them). Allow any writing to count toward your goals.
9. Make the experience enjoyable with treats or fancy clothes, etc.
10. Find brief moments to write (e.g., waiting for a bus or a plane).

Why I'm Wary of Publishing Advice, but Will Offer It Anyway

By Rebecca Colesworthy, Chronicle of Higher Education
<https://www.chronicle.com/article/why-im-wary-of-publishing-advice-but-will-offer-it-anyway>

- Myth 1: There are "good" and "bad" presses.
- Myth 2: A dissertation is basically a book.
- Myth 3: Publishers want a book with "crossover" potential.
- Myth 4: As a writer, you should play your cards close to the vest.

<https://www.chronicle.com/article/how-to-respond-politely-to-a-negative-peer-review>

- Keep your tone formal and cordial. Try to avoid sounding defensive, aggressive, or outraged, no matter how justified your frustration with the reports.
- Start with the positive.
- Answer the most salient critiques.
- Provide context.
- Don't just tell — show.
- Note your timeline.
- Talk with your editor.

Put Forward your Best Work

1. Collaborative research projects
2. Literature reviews
3. Reflections/ conceptual pieces
4. Grant projects
5. Class projects

84

Finding a Journal that Fits

What to look for?

1. Who will be your target readers?
2. Who are the authors and journals you cite the most related with your research program?
3. Is there a match between your work and the journal aims and scope?
4. What is the journal turnaround time?
5. What is the journal acceptance rate?
6. Do you know the editor(s)?

85

Where to start?

Peer-Reviewed Journals

1. Top-tier journals: are SSCI-indexed
2. Second-tier journals: have an established history in the field
3. Third-tier journals: often are newer to the field

86

Where to start?

Practitioner Journals

1. Target practitioners
2. Deal with problems and issues tied directly to practice
3. Receive wider circulations and visibility
4. Refereed or nonrefereed articles

94

Academic information/ resources (Cont'd)

- Tools for research
 - Citation/reference management
 - Ex. Endnote, Zotero, Refwork, Paper, etc.
 - Incorporate other software
 - Ex. Nvivo (qualitative analysis tool, Network analysis i.e.)
- Writing Tutorial Services
- Tutoring Services

95

Academic Information/ Resources (Cont'd) (Feng-Ru Sheu, Kent State University)

- Journal selection/evaluation
 - Impact/accreditation (*Predatory Journals)
 - Citation index (Web of Science, Google Scholar, etc.)
 - Impact factor
 - Ranking
 - Open Access vs. non-Open Access
 - Directory of Open Access Journals
 - Open Access Scholarly Publishers Association

96

Academic information/ resources (Cont'd)

- Journal evaluation & legitimacy
 - Consult with a librarian
 - Visit & Examine the journal's web site.
 - Reach out to journal's editorial board members.
 - Aim and goals of journal. Read the scope of the journal.
 - Read their peer review policy.
 - Check to see what "author fees" are being requested
 - Research industry associations.
 - DOAJ= Directory of Open Access Journals
 - OASPA = Open Access Scholarly Publishers Association

97

Journal Impact Factor

- Is the frequency of the average article in a journal has been cited in a specific period of time.
- Suggested to look at the rank or importance of a journal--the higher impact factor, the better rank.
- The calculation is to dividing the number of times articles were cited by the number of articles were citable. It is usually based on a two-year period.

Tools to measure journal impact factor

- Journal Citation Report: <https://goo.gl/yVw8si>
- Scimago Journal Rank (SRJ): <https://www.scimagojr.com/>

98

What is predatory publishing?

- Fake, fraudulent, questionable, or scam publishing
- Offering quick, easy, or 'open access' publication (in journals, conference proceedings, or books etc.) without providing quality assurance editorial services.
- Their purpose:
 - Deceive money
- Their main targets
 - Early career faculty
 - Researchers are inexperienced or working in high-pressure environments
 - institutions in the global south

(Clark, 2015; Elmore & Weston, 2020; Leonard et al., 2021)

99

Predatory (fake) Journals/ Publishers

(Feng-Ru Sheu, Kent State University, 2018)

Be Aware of Predatory Journals/Publishers!

- The publishing venue prey on academicians for making money without following scholarly publishing standards, commonly seen in the Open Access world.
- Also called "Pseudo-journals," "fake journals," and "sham journals."

(Beager, 2017; Clark & Smith, 2017)

100

Consequences to publish your hard work in predatory journals

- Undermines the scientific conversation
 - Fake peer-review may result in misinformation entering the research community
- Your research may be less likely to be used or found
 - since predatory publishing is not indexed
- You may lose your hard work and money

(Elmore & Weston, 2020)

101

How do we avoid predatory publishing?

- Keep yourself informed about their tactics and behaviors
- Useful resources to use
 - ✓ Check the journal and conference publishers:
 - Cabells "Predatory Reports"
 - Beall's List
 - Directory of Open Access Journal (DOAJ)- if claiming to be an open access journal
 - Committee on Publication Ethics (COPE)
 - Open Access Directory (OAD)
 - Open Access Scholarly Publishing Association (OASPA)
 - ✓ Other resources
 - Think, Check, Submit! - a campaign provides a simple checklist to assess a journal or publisher's credentials
 - Ask a librarian- consult a librarian in your institution

(Clark, 2015; Elmore & Weston, 2020; The George Washington University Health Science Library, 2020; Old Dominion University library, 2020)

102

Selecting a Journal

(Feng-Ru Sheu, Kent State University)

Two resources to identify the journals and publishers

1. The Directory of Open Access Journals (DOAJ): <https://doaj.org/>
 - Identify legitimate and high quality open access, peer-reviewed journals
2. Beall's List of Predatory Journals and Publishers: <https://beallslist.weebly.com/>
 - Identify predatory journals/publishers

103

Selecting a Journal

Be Aware Predatory Journals!

- Using the "Think. Check. Submit." checklist
 - Developed by a initiative of scholarly publishing organizations

Are you submitting your research to a trusted journal?
Publishing your research results is key to advancing your discipline – and your career – but with so many journals in your field, how can you be sure that you're choosing a reputable, trustworthy journal?

Predatory Journals/ Publishers

Examples of spam emails to attract potential authors

106

How to avoid predatory publishing? (Cont.)

- Things to consider
 - ✓ The publisher's reputation
 - ✓ Is the journal indexed?
 - See if you can find the journal in major research databases, such as the Web of Science
 - ✓ Is the editorial and peer review processes transparent?
 - ✓ Are the costs associated with publishing clear?
 - Credible journals do not ask for a submission fee
 - ✓ Does the email contain many typos?
 - ✓ Are the journal's publisher or staff contact details (i.e., website, postal address, working phone number) acknowledged in the email?

(APA, 2006; Clark, 2015; Leonard et al., 2021)

107

Selecting a Journal

(Feng-Ru Sheu, Kent State University, 2018)

Be Aware Predatory Journals!

- Criteria to check the journal
 - Do you or your colleagues know the journal?
 - Can you easily identify and contact the publisher?
 - Is the journal clear about the type of peer review it uses?
 - Are articles indexed in services that you use?
 - Is it clear what fees will be charged?
 - Do you recognize the editorial board?
 - Is the Publisher a member of a recognized industry initiative?

Access the checklist in detail at <http://thinkchecksubmit.org/check/>

108

Predatory Journals/ Publishers

(Feng-Ru Sheu, Kent State University, 2018)

Be Aware of Predatory Journals/Publishers!

- Characteristics
 - The journal asks for a submission fee
 - Promises of fast peer review and fast publication
 - Spam emails to attract potential authors
 - Small size of editorial board or not indicated clearly
 - Newness and the quantity: a very new journal that consists of a high quantity of articles in one issue
 - Inconsistencies in the scope and the content or journal title and contact address

(Beager, 2017; Prater, 2018)

109

Artificial Intelligence (AI) and Writing

• AI-assisted technologies

- Large Language Models (LLMs), Chatbots, and image creators, such as ChatGPT

• Ethics guidelines about AI-assisted technologies

- AI-assisted tools should not be listed as authors or co-authors (because they cannot take responsibility for what it has produced)
- Authors should report the use of AI-assisted tools for content creation in cover letters, acknowledge, or methods sections
- Editors and reviewers should note any use of AI-assisted tools to generate reviews and correspondence

(Elsevier, 2023; JAMA network, 2023; Sage, 2023; Science, 2023; WAME, 2023)

110 5/23/2025

110

Artificial Intelligence (AI) and Writing (Cont.)

• The use of AI-assisted technologies

Should	Shouldn't
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Used to improve readability and language of the work through word-processing tasks (i.e., grammar-checking and word-processing) • Under human oversight and control • All AI-generated work should reviewed and edited carefully 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • To create or alter images in submitted work (with exception*) • Format references or summarize complex information without checking its accuracy

(Elsevier, 2023; JAMA network, 2023; Sage, 2023; Science, 2023; WAME, 2023)

111 5/23/2025

111

Ethics and Citation

• Ethnic Risks

- In writing
 - Distribute misleading or incorrect information in the scholarly literature
 - Hinder creativity and differentiation in writing styles
- In peer-review process
 - Confidentiality breach issue
 - Copyright issue

• Citation

- Follow author guidelines to assert no plagiarism in their work, including in text and images produced by the AI.
- Authors must ensure appropriate attribution of all quoted material, including full citations.

(COPE, 2023; Elsevier, 2023; ICME, 2023; JAMA, 2023; Sage, 2023; Science, 2023)

Introduction to the Special Issue: Systematic Reviews of Research on Online Learning

Florence Martin

Curtis J. Bonk
Indiana University, USA

Deep-rooted tensions and controversies have existed in the field of education since the emergence of online forms of learning in the 1990s (Hanus, 1990, 2017). Many of these tensions have roots that extend back much further, affecting topics researched online in the context of teaching and learning more generally. As Web-based learning courses and programs become increasingly common in the late 1990s, research accelerated on such topics as communities of learning, online moderation and rule-playing, motivation and forms of engagement, forms of interactivity and feedback, and virtual teaching. Many educators and researchers simply wanted to know the state of e-learning (Bink, 2002) and blended forms of

Plans and Goals: Curt Bonk

How do you schedule your writing? How far in advance do you plan your writing? How do you prioritize your writing? How do you visualize your writing? Do you use a timeline or a planner? Do you have advice for developing a writing plan?

1. Plan: I save days for writing in my paper planner.
2. Focus: I say no to things that don't fit my writing plans.
3. Track: I note projects in process and completed in my daily Dalia Lama quote of the day.
4. Monitor: I look at articles I have in review, in revision, and in press in my CV all the time.
5. Be Responsive: I respond to co-writer requests.
6. Goals: Put writing plans in annual report.

183

Writing Tips: Curt Bonk

Anything special that you do?

My top 10 key writing tips:

1. Create a "Work" file on your desktop.
2. Save screen shots, dates, and URLs of articles.
3. Create "Articles to read" folder on your desktop.
4. Listen to audiobooks for writing ideas.
5. Watch movies & look for educational issues and ideas.
6. Always save documents at least twice.
7. Send draft of document to yourself on email...restart anywhere.
8. Ask friends to read second or third draft.
9. Save articles published by year.
10. Keep drafts of articles in special files.

184

10 More Writing Tips: Curt Bonk

Anything special that you do?

My top 20 key writing tips:

11. The Collins thesaurus.
12. Look for historical info online (e.g., Wikipedia and other).
13. Relocate to another room to edit document (i.e., kitchen table).
14. Sometimes sit. Sometimes stand.
15. Print out articles that you read parts of online.
16. Review paper piles on my pool table before you write.
17. Find info and URLs in previous talk slides.
18. Almost be more optimistic than pessimistic.
19. Work when your friends and family are sleeping.
20. Wherever you are is your writing space.

185

Writing Tools: Curt Bonk

What particular writing tools do you use? How have they changed over time? What about tools for collaboration?

My top 10 key writing tools:

6 Tips to Shape Up Your Writing

Two-Minute Tips: Short videos to help you excel in the academic workplace

Fernanda Zamudio-Suarez, The Chronicle of Higher Education

<https://www.chronicle.com/article/6-Tips-to-Shape-Up-Your/244281?cid=cp221>

<https://www.chronicle.com/specialreport/Two-Minute-Tips/221>

1. Writing is an exercise (write!).
2. Set goals based on output not input (e.g., 3 pages double-spaced).
3. Find a voice (don't just focus on getting published).
4. Give yourself time (not deadlines).
5. Pick a puzzle (your writing is an answer to that puzzle).
6. Edit your work (over and over and over again....just like Beethoven).

204

12. Organize Conference Symposia Which Can Lead to Special Journal Issues and Books

205

13. Sponsor Visiting Scholars to Work with You; They Often Have Writing Plans

206

14. Try to Submit or Publish Your Paper Before the Conference

207

15. Be Creative Somewhere (e.g., unique model, figure, chart, etc.)

208

Sidenote: Modify Your Environment (Find or Create Your Personal Sandbox)

209

But not too much!

210

16. Try Not to Give Up: Persistence and Grit Wins the Day

211

17. Be Polite and Thankful to the Journal or Book Chapter Editors

212

18. Recap Reviewer Points and How You Attempted to Address Them

213

19. Share Your Publication Efforts (e.g., Twitter, Facebook, LinkedIn, email, ResearchGate, Academia.edu, etc.)

214

20. Celebrate Your Writing Accomplishments with Friends

215

You never know where you'll be celebrating your writing accomplishments... Even at a wedding of your nephew!

216

Just don't celebrate too much!

217

Bonus #1. Be Careful Committing to Other People's Projects (OPP)

218

Bonus #2. Look for Special Issues that You Might Contribute To 219

Bonus #3. Save Research Articles for a Rainy Day (file folders on different topics)

220

Bonus #4. Treat Graduate Students as Colleagues (hec, treat everyone as a colleague)

The Importance of Friendships

Friendships are a priority for international students. Let's face it, an international student who might have traveled across the globe to study in the United States might have to cope with a bunch of things which are new to them.

- culture
- language
- academic subjects
- method of writing assignments
- teaching methodology
- style of personal identity
- lifestyle
- food
- climate
- culture
- life style

International students are often a vulnerable group. With $20 billion in international spending in the United States, it is not surprising that international students are a valuable asset to the United States. What if do not feel like writing:

- Tell yourself you will only write for 5 minutes
- Reward yourself such as with social media
- Save small task for low-motivation occasions
- Take a picture of ideas on a whiteboard
- Buy standing or cycling desks
- Walk around campus
- Have a free pass for no writing once per month
- Leave document open all day and write in short bursts
- Hire a writing coach or use writing accountability services

How move the piece:

- Word count goals such as 750 words/day, write 2 pages, or revise 5 pages
- Use pomodoro technique
- Set a timer
- Have specific goals like "rewrite methodology"
- Use goal setting tools like Prolifiko (productivity coaching for a more productive and stress free lifestyle; <https://prolifiko.com/>)
- Build deadlines for writing
- Participate in a writing group or share revisions each Monday in Google Doc

Redesigning common assignments to be AI-aware

ANNETTE VEE

MAR 24, 2025

Not every course needs to integrate AI, but they all need to acknowledge the fact that AI is a part of our writing landscape. In my last post, I talked about the importance of designing AI-aware courses and offered some questions to examine learning goals and AI's effects.

In this post, I drill down to some examples of AI-aware versions of common writing assignments: annotated bibliography, reading responses, and reflections. By using pathways that acknowledge AI, we can achieve learning goals that support student writing, reading, and thinking development. And we can do it without resorting to unreliable AI detectors.

If I use AI, how should I knowledge and cite it?

Overview: A Checklist for Acknowledging and Citing Generative A.I. Tools

You've probably heard about the importance of citing your sources in academic work. But in cases where you are asked or allowed to use an AI chatbot such as ChatGPT for some purpose in the writing process, how do you acknowledge and cite it? These steps can be helpful if you are considering whether or not to use and cite generative artificial intelligence in your academic work:

Acknowledge and Cite Generative A.I. Tools

- Get permission
- Reflect (Why?)
- Check accuracy
- Check true source
- Acknowledge use
- Follow citation guidelines

This is an adaptation by Anna Mills of an article by Kate Lang, originally part of the Writing and Academic Integrity section of the textbook Writing What Matters, licensed CC BY-NC-SA.

Acknowledging Use of AI Chatbots

An acknowledgment statement is meant to give credit where AI was used so that readers can understand how it may have influenced the text and the author's thinking. Microsoft University provides helpful recommendations for how to acknowledge when and how you've used generative AI as part of an assignment or project. They suggest that acknowledgment statements include the following:

- Specify which technology was used.
- Include explicit descriptions of how the information was generated.
- Identify the prompt used.
- Explain how the output was used in your work.

The format Microsoft University provides is also helpful. Students may include this information either in a cover letter or in an appendix to the submitted work. Academic writing guides such as APA already include guidelines for including appendices after notes and sources. Before the Purdue OWL entry on Explanations and Acknowledgments for help.

APA Style

According to the American Psychological Association (APA) as of February 21, 2024, AI chatbots should be cited like this:

Sample APA Citation

The APA also asks to include a disclaimer that the browser may evolve, and include the connection to the prompt (which may be generated and revised). Readers may then use the version history page to see changes to the version of ChatGPT used in the final draft. Some are concerned that including the connection to the

Getting creative

Many professors wonder whether it's possible to teach students to use AI constructively and meaningfully, particularly when it comes to building foundational skills. So a recent white paper caught my eye because it offers both a strategy and a caution.

"A New Muse: How Guided AI Use Impacts Creativity in Online Creative Writing Courses," by J.T. Bushnell and Wayne Harrison, who teach in the School of Writing, Literature & Film at Oregon State University, describes a small experiment they did in 2024.

"A New Muse: How Guided AI Use Impacts Creativity in Online Creative Writing Courses," by J.T. Bushnell and Wayne Harrison, who teach in the School of Writing, Literature & Film at Oregon State University, describes a small experiment they did in 2024. Students were drawn from online sections of an introductory course in creative writing and asked to write a scene about a person at work on a day when something unusual happens.

In the experiment, students were asked to complete the assignment three different times. First, they wrote a scene entirely on their own. Next, they were told to use AI however they wanted to assist them. Finally, they watched a series of short video lectures by Bushnell on how to use AI in the writing process, then completed the assignment.

The authors found that on average, the creativity of the students' writing decreased with unstructured AI use, but increased with guided use. The least skilled writers showed the most marked gains in their writing after watching the videos. In fact, the creativity of their writing caught up to the high-skilled writers.

Meanwhile, the most skilled writers did not show a drastic difference in their writing after watching the videos, but their writing suffered notably with unguided AI use.

Writing in the age of AI

Scott Carlson, The Edge, The Chronicle of Higher Education

<https://www.chronicle.com/newsletter/the-edge/2025-02-05>

In a world with ChatGPT, why bother writing?

John Warner is a writer who has made a career out of teaching and encouraging other people to write. Along the way, Warner — who is a columnist for Inside Higher Ed and the Chicago Tribune — has issued substantial criticism of the misaligned incentives and deadening curricula in schools and colleges that lead students to develop writing that is stilted, soulless, and downright bad.

Now we live in a world where a large language model can generate a grammatically clean, decently organized school essay, business-report preface, or letter to mom with just a few simple prompts. What's the role of writing — or writers — when generative AI can produce all the content you'll ever need?

In his new book, More Than Words: How to Think About Writing in the Age of AI, Warner argues that "writing is thinking" — and that the use of emotion, memory, physicality, and community all allow humans to create writing that AI cannot reproduce. His book ranges across the problems that AI presents to schools, to workplaces, and to people who write for money. Educational institutions, he argues, need to make the process of learning a "root value" of writing, rather than producing the perfect essay, which drives students to ChatGPT. "In a situation where the outcome is valued more than the process," Warner writes, "a shortcut to the desired outcome will always be attractive."

This interview has been edited for length and clarity.

Teaching Writing in the Age of AI: Challenges and Approaches

Steven Mintz, Inside Higher Ed

<https://www.insidehighered.com/opinion/blogs/higher-ed-gazette/2025/05/02/challenges-and-approaches-teaching-writing-age-ai>

Integrating Warner's and Cassuto's Insights into Teaching

By combining Warner's emphasis on authentic, thought-driven writing with Cassuto's focus on reader engagement, educators can develop strategies that help students build lasting writing skills. These include:

- Designing assignments that require personal and critical engagement. Asking students to incorporate personal insights, original research, or real-world applications. Encouraging students to engage deeply with texts rather than just summarizing them.
- Teaching the writing process as iterative and evidence-based. Encouraging students to revise their work based on detailed feedback. Helping students move beyond surface-level opinions to evidence-based argumentation.
- Emphasizing audience awareness. Teaching students to think of writing as a form of communication, not just an academic exercise. Encouraging clarity and engagement rather than excessive complexity.
- Fostering critical thinking over AI reliance. Helping students aware of AI's limitations — AI can generate text, but it cannot think critically, draw on personal experience, or offer meaningful commentary. Encouraging reflection on the value of human thought.
